

Badru D. Kateregga and David W. Shenk

Islam and Christianity (A Muslim and a Christian in Dialogue)

Grand Rapids, Michigan : William B. Eerdmans Publishing Company, 1981, 179 pp.

In this age of dialogue, while believers are busy searching ways and means to break the rock of prejudices and misunderstandings, this book is a powerful weapon to dispell the darkness of ignorance. This book, undoubtedly, initiates a new era of relationship and a positive approach for harmonious co-existence and collaboration between two important monotheistic religions—Islam and Christianity.

For many Muslims and Christians who are seriously engaged in dialogue, this book will be a great help. Students of comparative religion will find in it a guide and a manual. Although a number of books have been written on Islam and Christianity, comparing and contrasting the main tenets of both religions, only very few have succeeded in attaining the goal.

Both authors of this book have done a marvellous work in presenting the fundamental teachings of Islam and Christianity with such clarity and precision which is not found in many other books. Besides, the ideas expounded in this book are free from bias and prejudice.